Article number: 4352523

The Articon textile tube is flexible, semi-rigid sheathing that's slit at the side of the tube - perfect for subsequent application. Cables between phones, monitors, and printers can quickly get into a big tangled mess. With our cable management, order reigns and cables are kept in place at your desk. The unique, side-opening mesh construction of the Articon cable management makes it the ideal choice for all applications that need a simple and practical solution. Cables can also be removed or added at a later point. The side opening means the cable management can be opened anywhere along its length, enabling it to meet all your cable bundling requirements with ease. The semi-rigid mesh holes the cables securely in place without the need for additional fixtures. This textile tube is available in several colours, is self-closing, and light and flexible. The edge protrudes by 25% to conceal the cables within. It can be laid around narrow edges without opening or twisting..
